

about

rekindle

Rekindle is a non-profit youth-led social venture that transforms clean wood waste into handcrafted, biodegradable products, starting with coasters.

how it started

Our mission is to divert wood waste from landfills and reimagine it as climate-conscious goods that are affordable and rooted in circular design. Using discarded sawdust and shavings from local sawmills and furniture shops, we create products that reduce emissions and spark meaningful conversations around sustainability.

Each coaster is compostable, water-resistant, and designed for reuse. Handcrafted by youth and priced for accessibility, they help small businesses and students make low-waste choices without compromising on function.

Rekindle is building a “waste-to-worth” regenerative ecosystem, creating opportunities to reimagine everyday items through community-driven design.
